As per our agreement in Zoom Meeting 872 3459 0590, attached are photos detailing the lines discussed in writing and in mediation.

030 shows the deer netting and the rail that encroached into the neighbor's space - with consent.

088 looks down the edge of the established flower garden where our property boundary has always been.

255 illustrates both the 'arbitrary' line and how infeasible it is to put a fence there.

Much thought went into the design and construction of this garden, and all laws and park rules were considered. Thank you for considering a resolve on this dispute, regardless of other issues. Please let us know at your earliest convenience if we may replace our netting, even without the additional four feet in the back corner. If you would like any current photos of the current state of these spaces, feel free ask. I do have video footage of my neighbors taunting me and damaging my property as they destroyed all the work I'd put into that fence, as well as photos of the damage the deer have done, and I am reserving these until I have consulted with an attorney. While we have not reached an agreement satisfactory to the both of us, I appreciate your willingness to consider the facts and I still hope for an amiable solution.

Than you in advance,
Indigo Michaud

This photo was taken 5 minutes ago. It's 4am. The green part of the grass in the picture is my yard. The deer has come down the alley from the apple tree, looking to see if he can get some tomatoes. It's unreasonable to disallow me to put up a fence to protect my garden... I will not keep sending you unsolicited photos but thought this should be added to the photos I sent yesterday. I'm very tired of having to protect my garden with such vigilance. I look forward to resolving this next week in mediation, or sooner.

Indigo,

I have received your information on garden boundaries and I am reviewing it. I am waiting for Craig Posto #59 to return my call. I spoke with his son on Friday and Craig was returning home this weekend. I will keep you updated.
